WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT

Greetings! We had a successful conference at the University of South Carolina on October 20-22, 2017. There were 36 panels with about 130 participants, including 30 from overseas, presenting papers and/or serving as chairs/discussants. I would like to thank all of those whose participation made this conference a success. I would also like to express my sincere gratitude to the Walker Institute and the Office of Continuing Education and Conferences at the University for hosting and organizing this event. As you know, we will hold our 60th annual conference at the University of Maryland School of Law in Baltimore, Maryland, on October 5-7, 2018. Hope that you will join us to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the Association. In addition to the regular panels, we will hear from our senior members to reflect on the history of the Association, and to share their thoughts on promoting studies on China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and the Chinese diaspora in the years to come. Look forward to seeing you in Baltimore.

John Hsieh, President

FRIENDLY REMINDER FROM THE AACCS OFFICE

Dear AACCS Members and Friends:

Season's greetings. The coming lunar new year is the Year of the Dog. Wish all of you prosperity in the coming year.

AACCS membership is based on calendar year.

Many of you renewed your 2017 membership just weeks before the October conference, which can cause delay of receiving the April issue of the American Journal for Chinese Studies.

Paying membership dues is symbolic support for the AACCS that belongs to all of you. Please download your membership application/renewal form at the following website and send it with your payment to the AACCS office soon.

<http://aaccs.ccny.cuny.edu/membership1.htm>

If you have any questions, please contact the AACCS office at: aaccs@mail.com

Thank you so much for your support for the AACCS.

Peter Chow, Executive Director

ABOUT THE AACCS

The American Association for Chinese Studies (AACCS), founded in 1959, is the only academic society in America devoted exclusively to the general area of Chinese studies. The purpose of the Association is to:

- 1) Encourage the study of subjects related to China, especially in American educational institutions;
- 2) Advance such study and teaching through the exchange of information and scholarship across disciplinary lines;
- 3) Promote understanding and communication between Western and Eastern scholars involved in Chinese studies.

EDITORIAL TRANSITION FOR THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF CHINESE STUDIES

As many of you already know, after many years of successful service, Tom Bellows is retiring from editorship of the American Journal of Chinese Studies. The October 2017 volume was his last official issue. I am sure that all AACS members will want to join me in thanking Tom for so many years of service.

I have now officially assumed duties as editor of the journal, and have established a new editorial office at the Sigur Center for Asian Studies at the George Washington University. However, because I have other heavy duties that prevent me from giving the Journal my full attention this academic year, Yenna Wu, of the University of California-Riverside, has kindly agreed to serve as associate editor for one year to help in the transition.

One of the main tasks we face to insure the continued success of the Journal is make sure that we have a steady stream of quality submissions. Therefore, I want to appeal to all AACS members to remember the Journal if you are working on an article; and to spread the word to other scholars who might be interested in publishing with us. Although, the Journal has a strong reputation for publishing in the social sciences, we would like to continue recent efforts to expand the Journal with articles in the Humanities, and other disciplines, on subjects related to China, Taiwan or the Chinese diaspora. In order to create continuity over time and sharing among editors, I have established a new gmail account for manuscript submissions and other Journal business: <ajchst@gmail.com>. Meanwhile, Yao-Yuan Yao at the University of St. Thomas is in his second year of service as our new book review editor. He can be reached directly at: <yehy@stthom.edu> or <yeh2sctw@gmail.com>.

From Edward A. McCord, Editor of the American Journal of Chinese Studies, Professor of History and International Affairs, George Washington University

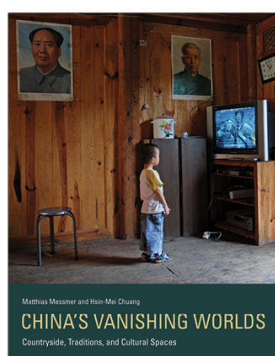

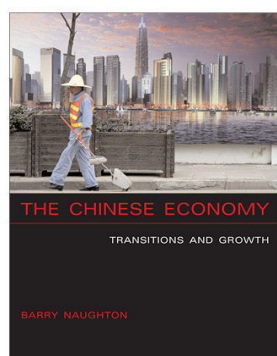

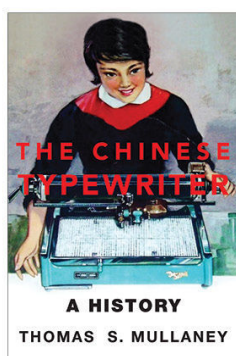

I am also very interested in expanding our base of potential manuscript and book reviewers. The AJCS is a peer-reviewed journal and its continuing quality is necessarily dependent on the willingness of scholars in our community to help us to review and evaluate manuscript submissions. So I would like to appeal to all AACS members to consider providing this service as you time allows. Please let us know if you are willing to help us with this important task. If we can identify a good number of potential reviewers we can spread the work around and thus insure that no one person is overburdened with too many requests.

Finally, I want to note that I have created a new 'bare bones' website for the Journal with manuscript submission and subscription information: www.ajchinesestudies.org. I have established this website as an independent entity rather than through my institution so that future editorial transitions will require less work. More will be added to this website as time goes on.

REFLECTIONS ON THE 2017 AACCS CONFERENCE AT THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA

Please visit <https://aacs.ccny.cuny.edu/conferences1.htm> for previous years' conference programs

The 59th Annual Conference of American Association for Chinese Studies in Columbia, South Carolina, was a tremendous interdisciplinary event bringing academics not only from the United States but also overseas. Thanks to the significant financial support which I obtained through the Junior Travel Grant of AACCS, I was able to come to take part in this event all the way from Hong Kong and present my PhD project in front of a diverse audience. I have obtained a valuable feedback from my panel discussant, Prof. June T. Dreyer, as well as from my fellow panelist. I have found the program well balanced, a variety of topics constituted an intriguing blend of disciplines which were inspirational for my own research approach. I have learned a lot from my colleagues, and if the time allows me, I would definitely like to take part in the following year's 60th jubilee conference at Baltimore.

Jan Karlach, PhD Student, The Hong Kong Polytechnic University

I would like to express my sincere thanks to the AACCS, which provides an opportunity for a junior faculty like me to travel to the conference. I am a first time conference offered a lot more than I expected. The Walker Institute at the University of South Carolina was a first-class institution to hold a meeting like this. The city of Columbia was scenic and pleasant. The keynote and luncheon speeches by Dr. Larry Diamond and Deputy Minister Cheng-yi Lin were stimulating and informative. There were also a large number of presentations in the regular panels and the discussions that I thought were quite amazing. Careful selection of quality papers and attentive arrangement by the conference team undoubtedly contributed to this. Yet, the keenness of most participants and the ways in which presenters made expert research easily accessible to wider audiences of diverse disciplinary backgrounds were also the reasons for the conference's success. Before coming to the AACCS 2017, I had the impression that this organization was only for political scientists. Now my view has changed. Scholars and graduate students from other humanities and social sciences disciplines who work on China, Taiwan, and the Chinese overseas will find this conference a rewarding stop. As a historian, I find many of the topics discussed at Columbia this year relevant to my own research and teaching. I will definitely look forward to attend future AACCS conferences.

Dominic Meng-Hsuan Yang, recipient of the Junior Scholar Travel Grant

My appreciation goes to The AACS conference for holding the fantastic and successful event in October. It is one of the most unforgettable and stunning experiences in my life.

I have attended several conferences in Taiwan and Europe, and this is the first time I journeyed to the United States for a conference. I have gained a lot during the short stay in the US. Firstly, I received feedbacks of great help from the panel chair, discussants and audiences, which enlightened me and eventually contributed to the improvement of my recent studies. Furthermore, with this valuable opportunity, I am allowed to know many scholars and researchers, and catch up the novel and creative ideas from specialists in diverse fields of Chinese studies. Until now, the lovely banquet held in the gorgeous hall, the inspiring lectures, and the heated discussions between attendants and speakers still linger in my mind, not to mention the delicious dishes.

Once again, I would like to express my sincere appreciation to all the board members and program committee. I could not be more honored to have the opportunity to take part in this event. As one of the recipients of travel grant, I am incredibly grateful to AACS for reducing my financial burden. Before the conference came to an end, I had already started looking forward to AACS conference in 2018.

Yi-Chi Chiu
University of Manchester, United Kingdom

I presented my paper "India and Taiwan in the Global Arena: Locating the Ties in Shifting Geopolitical Strands in Asia" at the 59th AACS Annual Conference in 2017 at University of South Carolina, Columbia, SC. I received a generous Junior Scholar Travel Grant from the AACS for this conference. The grant was a great support provided by the association to me.

The conference was in fact my first opportunity to travel to the USA and interact with leading experts and authorities on China and Taiwan there. I greatly benefited from this opportunity as I attended the maximum possible number of panels at the conference. I was highly impressed by the range of topics and themes discussed at the conference. Participation in the conference was a distinction for me because the AACS recognised the significance of growing India-Taiwan ties and invited me to speak on them. My paper, which I presented at the conference, is most likely to be published in an international and refereed journal this year.

I must say that the conference organisation was very efficient. The conference team guided me throughout my planning and undertaking of the journey. For this kind help, my journey remained hassle-free. I look forward to participate in the future conferences. I hope that the future conferences will see more participation from the developing countries of the world. And, the scholars from the developing countries will receive generous financial support from the AACS.

Dr. Prashant Kumar Singh, Associate Fellow, IDSA

“ It is one of the most unforgettable and stunning experiences in my life. ”

AACS 2017 Annual Conference was a wonderful experience to meet many outstanding researchers from a wide range of disciplines. It stimulated in-depth discussions about various impressive projects. It was also providing strong support for young scholars entering academia, lots of good advice and indispensable information!

Hsin-Hsuan Lin

I very much appreciate AACS's travel grant, which covers part of my travel expenses. I was also very happy to attend the AACS 2017 annual conference, which was held in my alma mater-University of South Carolina. I presented a paper exploring the role of social media on Sunflower Movement in Hong Kong in 2014. I got valuable suggestions and comments from my discussant, panelists, and people who attended the panel. I also exchanged some research ideas with quite a few participants of AACS. In addition, the keynote speech "Does Democracy Have a Future in Chinese Societies?" delivered by Larry Diamond was very impressive. This is my third time to attend AACS annual conference, and I always benefited a lot from attending AACS.

Call for Papers 60th Annual Conference of the American Association for Chinese Studies Hosted by the University of Maryland School of Law October 5-7, 2018

The American Association for Chinese Studies (AACS) annual conference program committee invites proposals for panels and papers concerning China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and the Chinese diaspora for the 60th Annual Conference, hosted by the University of Maryland School of Law in Baltimore, Maryland, on October 5-7, 2018. The theme of the conference is "Social, Economic, and Political Change in China and Taiwan." The AACS seeks to construct a balanced program, including panels representing the humanities, social sciences, communication studies, education, business, and other related disciplines.

To mark the 60th anniversary of the AACS, the program committee welcomes, in particular, studies comparing developments in China and Taiwan over the past six decades.

The AACS is an interdisciplinary association devoted to the study of China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and the Chinese diaspora (<http://aacs.ccny.cuny.edu/homepage.htm>). Submissions from all disciplines are welcome. Membership in AACS is required for participation in the annual conference, and non-members are welcome to submit proposals, join the Association, and participate in the annual conference. We encourage submissions from graduate students, junior and senior scholars, and international participants.

The program committee prefers proposals for complete panels (a chair, 3-4 papers, and 1-2 discussants) and roundtables (a chair and 3-4 other participants). The committee also welcomes proposals for individual papers and will attempt to place them on appropriate panels. Panels and roundtables concerning special events or topics of broad significance are welcome as well.

The program committee consists of Joel S. Fetzer (Pepperdine University), John Hsieh (University of South Carolina), Pei-te Lien (University of California, Santa Barbara), Fang-long Shih (London School of Economics and Political Science), and Yenna Wu (University of California, Riverside). Proposals should include the names and roles of panel/roundtable participants, contact information, paper topics and short abstracts (not to exceed 250 words). Please send your proposal by e-mail to the program chair, John Hsieh, at <aacs2017@gmail.com>. Please include complete contact information (institutional affiliation, address, telephone number, and e-mail) for all participants. The deadline for panel and individual proposals is March 1, 2018. Scholars submitting proposals by the deadline will be notified of their inclusion in the program by May 1, 2018.

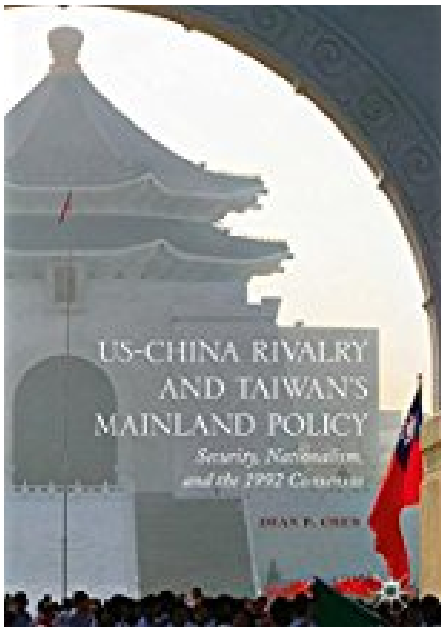

The AACS views conference registration and attendance as a serious professional obligation. Panelists must register for the AACS 2018 conference
